EVERY NIGHT, BEFORE BED · ABOUT TEN MINUTES

1 Empty the sink

Completely. Dishwasher or washed.

2 Wipe the counters

And the table you eat at.

3 One lap

Put back anything not where it lives.

This is the part that matters. A kitchen reset every night never needs rescuing. Skip it four days and you have a project.

DAY	THE ONE JOB, ON TOP OF THE NIGHTLY TEN MINUTES
Monday	Floors Sweep, vacuum or mop. Dust what needs it — blinds, mirrors, shelves. Include the entry and stairs.
Tuesday	Laundry, start to finish Wash, dry, fold, and put it away the same day. Folded and left in the basket doesn't count.
Wednesday	Bedroom and the main bathroom Floors, surfaces, mirror, toilet, sink, tub. Check whether the windows need doing.
Thursday	The kitchen, properly Appliances, cabinet fronts, and clear the old food out of the fridge. Wipe the shelves while it's empty.
Friday	Nothing extra. Just the nightly ten.
Saturday	The other bathroom, and the car Second bathroom top to bottom. Sweep the garage. Clear out the car and the trunk.
Sunday	Nothing extra. Just the nightly ten.

IF YOU ONLY DO ONE THING

Empty the sink before bed.

Move jobs to whichever day suits you. But everything on the list is done by Sunday night. The order is yours. The finishing isn't.

Before any of this works, the place has to start at zero once — everything with a home, nothing left to deal with later. Then this keeps it there.
